The Action of the Convention Causes Great Enthusiasm in This City-Political Notes.

The action of the Philadelphia convenion in nominating McKinley and Roosevelt by acclamation, although anticipated, was the signal for general rejoicing among the Republicans of this city. The nominations are generally regarded as the strongest that could possibly have been made.

While McKinley's nomination was a foregone conclusion, the attitude assumed by Roosevelt led to the belief that he would decline to make the race, even if nominated, and that a man of less strength would perforce be nominated in his place. For the few days immediately preceding the convention the feeling among Indiana Republicans that Roosevelt was the man The ruffled muslin kind, 3 yards for the place waxed warmer and warmer, and, pursuant to this feeling, a number of telegrams were sent to Senator Fairbanks, chairman of the Indiana delegation, urging him to do what he could toward securing Roosevelt's nomination. When word was received of the nomination of McKinley which prevailed in the big convention, a corresponding wave of enthusiasm struck ndianapolis, and all day long yesterday Republicans were felicitating one another on the happy selections made by the convention. The following are a few of the many expressions voiced by prominent Republicans yesterday:

> THE EXPRESSIONS. W. H. Hart, auditor of state: "The nominations are the strongest that could have been made. The ticket will be strong in Roosevelt is very popular with the younger men of the country, and his nomination will lend an added enthusiasm to the campaign."

Cyrus J. Clark, sheriff of Marion county: "The selection of Roosevelt as a running mate for McKinley makes one of strongest combinations possible. Roosevelt's popularity is attested by the fact that he was nominated by acclamation." Armin Koehne, treasurer of Marion county: "I do not see how the convention could have done better than to have nominated Roosevelt for the vice presidency. McKinley and Roosevelt will make the ticket a winner." Grant Mitchener, secretary of the Lincoln League: "The convention has nominated a strong ticket and one that everybody is satisfied with. I have long believed that Roosevelt was the strongest man for the second place on the ticket, and I see Court: "McKinley and Roosevelt form a combination of great strength, and their nominations have been enthusiastically received by Republicans generally." C. C. Perry, president of the Marion Club; There is nothing too good for me to say about the ticket. Everybody seems to be pleased with it, and I think that the nominations are the strongert that could have been made. It is bound to be a winner this Charles Elliott, secretary of the Marion county Republican executive committee: "The boys in Indianapolis and Marion county are greatly pleased with the nomination of McKinley and Roosevelt. We think that it is the strongest ticket that could have been nominated. It has all the armarks of a winner. Harry B. Smith, auditor of Marion county: "The ticket nominated in Philadelphia means an increased majority for the Re-

An Enthusiastic Republican.

Judge Lemuel Royse, ex-representative of the Thirteenth dis rict, was in Indianapolls yesterday. He is enthusiastic over the Republican situation in northern Indana. He says four years ago the freesilver sentiment was very attractive to many Republicans, but this year he declares the party is united, aggressive and eager for the campaign on the lines of the Philadelphia platform. He says Roosevelt's mination will be an added strength to the ticket in every feature of the can-

Since the Republican convention has nominated Roosevelt for Vice President the idea has already been taken up in this State of organizing Rough Rider regiments to take the place of the usual campaign clubs. In anticipation of the election of Tax Commissioner Buskirk to the judgeship to which he has been nominated in the Democratic judicial district composed of Orange, Washington and Jackson counties, there are applications innumerable for his position. It is probable that the appointment will go to Mason J. Niblack, of Vincennes, or Senator Josiah Gwin, editor of the New Albany Press. FOR THE SICK CHILDREN

OPENING OF THE FRESH AIR MI SION AT FAIRVIEW PARK.

Plenty of Good Entertainment Provid ed for the Little Folks-

A Picnic.

Yesterday afternoon and evening the Fresh Air Mission grounds at the en trance of Fairview Park presented an attractive appearance, with its crowds of little folks filling the swings and hammocks and playing on the smooth lawns. There was quite as many old folks who enjoyed the opening day, as yesterday was called, and viewed the beautiful scenery around the place.

The bluff on which the Fresh Air Mission is situated overlooks the canal and towpath, and just beyond the river is seen, with an abundance of luxurious foliage. Although yesterday was the official opening of the cottages, yet children have teen cared for at the mission since Monthemselves of the opportunity to send the little folks out where they are always well cared for and where they receive the benefits of pure air, and plenty of good, wholesome food. Mrs. E. B. McCoy, who is in charge, and Miss Sarah Smith, her assistant, have worked hard to get everything in readiness for the opening, with the result that the place looks even prettier and fresher than ever. The cottages and furniture have been repainted and the swimming pool enlarged, while there an addition on the grounds of three hammocks and three swings. The ladies had provided for a large crowd yesterday and there were about ninety gallons of ice cream on the grounds which even the summer girl, who is s fond of ice cream, was a little shy about eating, the weather being so chilly. Everyone had their wraps, however, and tled themselves comfortably about the grounds and on the veranda to enjoy the evening and listen to the Boys' Brigade Band, which gave a concert both afternoon and evening. The boys had their sup pers with them and between numbers left the veranda for the lawns, where they entered into the fun with the other boys and girls and went back to their instruments with regret when the director called every number was encored. During the afternoon the High School Cadets, who are in camp at Fairview Park, gave a skirmish drill, which was witnessed by a couple of hundred people. Although the odds were against the boys, as the ground on which they drilled was very uneven and not quite large enough, yet the the onlookers and were given quite an ovation. The Sunday school of the Boys' Club, with Miss Graydon, Miss Moore, Miss Anna Fraser, Mr. W. D. Coffin, Mr. E. S. Pearl and Miss Fortner, had a picnic at Fairview Park yesterday and about 4 o'clock joined the guests at the Fresh Air Mission and as sisted in the merrymaking. In the even ing the grounds were brilliantly illum inated and refreshment tables were placed about where the guests were served with ice cream and cake by the members of the board of control and their assistants, Mrs. C. B. Oakes and Mrs. Goodhart were in charge of the entertainment. On account of the threatening weather yesterday the ladies have decided to keep open house again to-day and people who are interested in the work of the Fresh Air Mission are invited to join the ladies this afternoon, General Benjamin Harrison is president of the Fresh Air Mission and takes a great interest in the work. He was out of town and unable to be present ye terday at the opening, but when in the city in the summer often visits the place. An entertainment, "The Carnival of Romances," for the benefit of the Fresh Air Mission, will be given at Tomlinson Hall

MATCH INDUSTRY

A FACTORY NOW NEARING COMPLE TION AT CRAWFORDSVILLE.

The Struggle of the Independent Fac tories Discussed by F. C. Valentine, of This City.

"I know of no other manufacturing in terest which has experienced the beneficial effects of good times so much as has the match business," said F. C. Valentine to a Journal reporter last night. Mr. Valentine is in a position to speak authoritatively upon the subject. For some years he was a traveling representative of the Continental Match Company, with large territory to cover. When the Continental was finally absorbed by the "trust," whose legal title is the Diamond Match Company, in August of last year, after one of the bitterest fights known in the history of the match trade, Mr. Valentine entered the brokerage business, becoming a member of the New York firm of Marriott & Co.

About the only match factory of any prominence which was not "taken into the fold" by the Diamond was the Ohio Match Company at Wadsworth, O. This plant has a unique history. Some years ago an inventor named E. J. Young took out patents upon several machines for making matches quickly and of excellent quality and succeeded in interesting in his projects a number of wealthy men, in and about the town of Wadsworth. These men possessed large capital and soon built up a business which became a serious menace to the interests of both the Continental and the Diamond Match companies. Repeated efforts to purchase the Wadsworth factory have invariably met with failure. For a considerable period after the great deal of August, 1900 consummated by the Diamond Match Company, the Ohio concern was "fighting the trust" practically single-handed and alone. recently they took a notion to reach out for some of the Western trade, accordingly sending to Indianapolis Mr. Valentine, who opened headquarters at the Majestic building. Connections are rapidly being estabished which will reach to the far West and South, and Mr. Valentine is enjoying life. 'making it warm" for the match trust. He talks interestingly of the business, knowing its "ins and outs," "ups and downs"

A LONG STRUGGLE. "The Diamond Match Company struggled for years to acquire a controlling interest n the match business of the country," safd he, "but met with only partial success until August of last year. You will, of course, recall the disastrous failure of Moore & Co., of Chicago, which affected the Diamond Match Company greatly. Edwin Gould was declared to have been at the head of the deal by which the downward movement of Diamond Match stock, which precipitated that failure was brought about. Gould got into the match business in a rather queer way. He loaned money to one of the big stockholders of the Continental Company, taking a block of stock as collateral. The 'old story' was repeated; the borrower could not meet his obligation and Mr. Gould found himself in possession of a nice lot of valuable securities which gave him a foothold in the enterprise. It was not long until Gould, a hitherto unknown quantity in the match business, was crowned one of its 'kings,' When the Continental was bought by the 'trust' it was reliably stated that Mr. Gould received a milion dollars of Diamond stock at par. The stock was then worth 120. Besides, he became a member of the directorate, which

"But I started out to tell you something about the prosperity the match people are enjoying. What I have said forms a good introduction. With practically all of the opposition cleared from their path, the Diamond Match Company began to put up prices. The Ohio company concluded not to fight the 'trust,' at least not for a time but instead to participate in the general good times for a while. Accordingly, matches went 'soaring,' until now a class of goods I used to sell on the road for seventy cents I can get $1.40 for. Of course, the 'trust' is not altogether responsible for this great advance in prices. The high price of lumber is an important factor. It is almost impossible to get good lumber nowand it requires good lumber to make good matches. Our factory over at Wadsworth has a million fet of lumber lying on the ground, drying out, so as to be fit for use Then the paraffine in which the heads of the sticks are dipped as one of the incidents in the process of matchmaking, is greatly advanced in price. A CLOUD VISIBLE. "This extraordinary good luck that the match makers are enjoying cannot, of course, last forever. Already 'the cloud of the size of a man's hand' is visible or the trade horizon. Since last August number of factories have been started to comepete with the trust. I see by the local at Crawfordsville. The various outside tion. Only 327 out of a total of 2,964 chilconcerns are simply gathering strength and 'bidding their time' to begin a campaign which will make things exceedingly lively among the jobbers and redound greatly to the profit of the private consumers of the little 'light sticks' as they were once termed. I do not look for the fight to come anyways soon, if at all. Indeed, it may be 'suppressed' before it assumes formidable proportions. However, Colonel 'Wally' Downs, of the well-known Seventyfirst New York Regiment, said not long ago that, in his opinion, a lawsuit brought against him by Mr. Edwin Gould meant nothing more nor less than an attempt to put an entering wedge into the match company of which he (Downs) is at the head, and thus 'shut off' one concern from fight-ing the trust. Colonel Downs, it is claimed, thinks Gould is pressing the suit with view to securing an interest in Downs's company, which is the American Match Company, of New York. This plant was originally intended for the manufacture of matchmaking machines, but recently it was given out that they had perfected arrangements for the making of matches also. In addition to the Downs company, there are six outside match factories, prepared or preparing to compete with the trust. These are the Modern Match Company, of Detroit; the Ohio Match Company, of Wadsworth, O.; the Safe Harbor Match Company, of Safe Harbor, Pa.; the Ruby Match Company, of Camden, N. J.; a factory in Pennsylvania, and the one in Crawfordsville, Ind.

FROM PRISON TO AFFLUENCE.

The Story of Edward A. Cautly Reads Like Romance.

On the 15th of this month Governor Mount issued a six months' parole to Edward A. Cautly, convicted in Grant county of forgery and sentenced to three years in the Indiana state prison. After Cautly had been in prison a few months he became a trusty and soon afterward escaped.

In a letter to Governor Mount, in which he details the life he has led since his escape from prison, Cautly says that he went to Chicago and worked for two months in machine shop as a scrubber. From there he went East and under an assumed name secured a position with a large railroad company and worked in the collection department for three years. He afterward became connected with a large insurance company, and in the capacity in which he was employed handled as much as $25,000 of the company's money every month. Under an assumed name he has become very prominent in the city of his adoption and is now married and has one little boy. He says that he was always afraid of being arrested, and this fear so haunted him that he finally came back to voluntary imprisonment. On one occasion when Governor Matthews was East be was tendered a reamong the invited guests was Cautly. Tak-ing Governor Matthews to one side Cautly and found that Cautly's statement was true, and one of his last acts was to tell Governor Mount of the case and urge that Cautly be pardoned. Cautly's wife was taken with consumption a short time ago and her physician ordered her to a Western State. This was the first opportunity Cautly had to surrender himself, and he went immediately to Michigan City and told his story to Warden Shideler. The warden communicated with the Governor and Cautly's pardon soon followed. About The Water Company Switch Ordinance the time of the parole Cautly's mother was stricken with paralysis and is now on her death bed. Neither she nor the wife know anything of Cautly's conviction and subsequent imprisonment and escape. The company by which Cautly is employed gave him his choice of any state agency, and he selected the one in which the climate is best suited to the health of his wife and will follow her there as soon as his mother improves. It is understood a pardon will be issued before the parole expires. Accompanying the letter of Cautly to Governor Mount were indorsements and recommenda tions signed by many prominent men in the East who are well known throughout the

he Reply, However, Slienced Hiu for the Evening-Closing Sessions of Children's Home Society.

The National Children's Home Society held the last meeting of its two days' conference in the parlor on the second floor of Plymouth Church last night. It had been the original intention to meet in the auditorium, but the forbidding weather prevented a sufficient attendance to justify the use of the larger room.

The parlor was comfortably filled, and a delightful air of sociability marked the proceedings. Rev. Dr. T. H. Hagerty, of St. Louis, was presiding officer in place of Rev. T. S. Lamb, as announced on the printed programme. Prayer was offered by Marriott & Co. are the Eastern representa-tives of this Ohio "anti-trust" plant and Charles F. Hansen compiled with Dr. Hagerty's request for a little music. Rev. W. H. Thompson, of Pennsylvania, read a paper on "Technical Phases of Child-saying Work," which was characterized by its display of profound scholarship as well as intimate knowledge of the habits and disposition of children. Much information valuable to those engaged in the benevolent work was contained in Mr. Thompson's ad-

> Mr. A. W. Butler, secretary of the Indiana Board of State Charities, was expected to deliver an address last night, but was suddenly called East, and Mr. W. B. Streeter, agent of the board, appeared to represent him. Mr. Streeter talked interestingly of the methods pursued in this State in saving dependent children. He showed marked antipathy to the house of correction method of handling unruly juveniles, although expressing a feeling of admiration and respect for officials in charge of the work. His positive declaration that there is another and better way to treat form schools was greeted with applause. One of Mr. Streeter's closing utterances said: "I maintain that there is somewhere a home into which every child-no matter what may be his moral or physical condition-will fit and in which he may develop into a good man." Something of a sensation was created when the speaker returned a prompt and exceedingly apt reply to rather impertinent query propounded by one of the delegates who had been asleep during the greater part of the meeting. A suggestion was made that inasmuch as Mr A. O. Wright had been an active worker in the society's affairs and has always heretofore attended its meetings and been honored by election to the office of secretary and superintendent, that in his absence would be a delicate compliment to elechim honorary vice president. This was done by unanimous vote. An afternoon paper stated erroneously that Mr. Wright was elected to his former position of secretary Rev. W. H. Thompson was chosen by viva voce vote to become a member of the committee appointed to visit New York. The meeting closed with brief talks by several of the delegates, the singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" and benediction by Rev. Dr. Hagerty. THE OTHER SESSIONS.

> At the morning session yesterday the annual election of officers was held, which resulted in the choice of Prof. C. R. Henderson, of Chicago, as president; Washington Gardner, of Michigan, as vice president; John Woodbridge as honorary president; Rev. H. H. Hart, of Illinois, as secretary and national superintendent, and the entire executive committee of last year. A report was read by Dr. F. H. A brief memorial service in honor of Rev. Dr. Van Arsdale, who founded the society. was held and several feeling tributes were paid to his worth. His widow, who is assistant superintendent of Illinois, was reported as seriously sick and unable to attend to her duties. The conference voted nanimously to retain her on the pay roll Miss Sarah F. Keely, who has charge of the Industrial School for Girls in this city. and T. J. Charlton, superintendent of the Plainfield Reform School for Boys, were interested visitors at the morning session and addressed the delegates briefly. Mr. Clifford declines to make any state-

MR. PERROTT'S PREDICAMENT IN EXPLAINING HIS VOTE.

Passed by the Council-Municipal Affairs.

The special meeting of the Council last night, called for the purpose of taking action on the ordinance granting permission to the Indianapolis Water Company to lay a switch across the Crawfordsville road at its pumping station, resulted in the ordinance being passed by a vote of 15 to 4 The ordinance was introduced at the last meeting of the Council and an effort was made to suspend the rules and pass it that night, but Councilman Perrott and a few other Democratic members objected to thi being done.

Last night the committee on railroads filed a favorable report on the ordinance, which was adopted, and then motion was made that it be read the second time. After this was done Councilman Daller moved that it be engrossed, read the third time and placed upon its passage. This motion was carried. When the vote was taken Horan, Kelly, Moriarity and Reill; voted against it. Councilman Perrott arose | beauty. to explain his vote. He objected to the manner in which the ordinance was hurried through and while doing this Councilman Bernauer arose to a point of order and demanded that Mr. Perrott explain his vote and President Crall said the motion was well taken.
